Fin-Tastic Fun

The Amazing Daily Dolphin Show - No Tickets Needed

FROM PAM HELTERBRAN - CHATTANOOGA, TN

I've spent enough time around dolphins to know one thing—you don't really spot them, they kind of just show up and surprise you.

One minute the Gulf is calm, and the next a bottlenose is launching out of the water, twisting mid-air like it's putting on a show, and dropping back in like nothing happened. And every time, people react the same way—doesn't matter how many times they've seen it.

Around Panama City Beach, these are Atlantic bottlenose dolphins. They're part of the cetacean family, so yes—technically they're in the same broader group as whales. Most are under 12 feet, but they've got a lot more presence than their size suggests.

What always gets me is how social they are. Pods can be a few dolphins or a whole moving group working together—herding fish, hunting smart, taking advantage of opportunities offshore. It's very much a team effort out there.

And they're playful too. Riding boat wakes, surfing waves, even blowing bubble rings just to break them apart like toys. It's hard not to notice they're having a good time.

Each one even has a signature whistle—basically a name they develop when they're young—and they remember each other for years.

So whether you're on the beach, riding on Seascreamer, or headed toward Shell Island with Shell Island Shuttle, it usually just happens. You look up... and there they are. So go ahead, be one with your inner kid and embrace that giddy feeling when you see them and enjoy the show!

Coconuts Restaurant is a casual beachfront hangout serving fresh Gulf seafood, burgers, and tropical cocktails with a view. Guests love the toes-in-the-sand seating, laid-back atmosphere, and frequent live music.

Hello Again Old Friend

The Newly Renovated St Andrews State Park Pier is Re-Open

FROM NERISSA CARDEN - MACON, GA

The pier at St. Andrews State Park is finally back—and if you've been coming here as long as I have, you know that's a big deal. After Hurricane Michael, it's been beautifully rebuilt, bringing back one of my favorite spots.

It really feels like what's old is new again. I grew up walking that pier, and now I get to do it all over with my own kids—kayaks, snacks, and that rush to the water, with the pier back in the mix.

The park still has its magic—clear, calm water, wildlife around every corner, and trails perfect for a quick wander before a picnic. With roots going back to the 1940s, with piers here since the 1950s—rebuilt over time, but always part of the experience.

With the pier finally reopened, it feels like the park is fully itself again—and like a little piece of my childhood has come back to life.

Know Before You Go:

There is a small entrance fee to access St. Andrews State Park, but once inside, visitors can enjoy the newly reopened pier, beaches, trails, and more—no additional cost.

ST. ANDREWS STATE PARK
Pier Reopened: May 18
Closures: May 18 - May 19

FISH HOUSE • RESTAURANT AND OYSTER BAR

AS FRESH AS IT GETS! LOCALLY-CAUGHT AND PERFECTLY-PREPARED SEAFOOD
IN THE HEART OF HISTORIC ST.ANDREWS.

Our heritage began with a special lady who had a vision and $75. In the late 1930's Rena Dell Windham was given a wedding gift of $75, which she saved for several years, with that $75 Rena Dell purchased an undeveloped lot at 1100 Beck Ave.

Eventually Mrs. Windham's husband Tony and his father "Pap" built and opened their first seafood restaurant and oyster bar known as Windham and Son's.

Once Windham and Son's opened. Pap was out front sharing southern hospitality, greeting and chatting with passersby.

Pap loved fresh seafood so much, he often sold Mullet, snapper, and grouper just outside the restaurant. His concern was not so much if locals and tourists came inside, as long as they were enjoying fresh, local caught seafood.

As Time passed, a third generation joined the family tradition, Mitch Holman and his father Pete continued in the Restaurant business. In 1967, Captain Mitch and Pete established Capt's Table Fish House Restaurant. The restaurant was located in the heart of Panama City Beach on the corner of Front Beach and Middle Beach road, little did he know they were about to start what is now one of the few old fish houses. In 1993 the family restaurant was lost to fire, without hesitation, Capt. Mitch started a commercial fishing fleet. With hard work, dedication and the same vision his grandmother Rena Dell Windham had, Mitch reopened the family restaurant where it all began in St Andrew. Now,

Mitch Holman and his family are pleased to share the same southern traditions passed down by Pap Windham, greeting locals and tourist with a smile, a handshake, and fresh caught southern seafood is what the Capt's Table is all about.

Their goal is to give their customers the same taste of fresh, locally caught seafood the Capt's Table of the beach did with the hometown flavor of St. Andrew.

The Sound of Freedom

Every roar from above tells a story

FROM JOE ROBERTS - LYNN HAVEN, FL

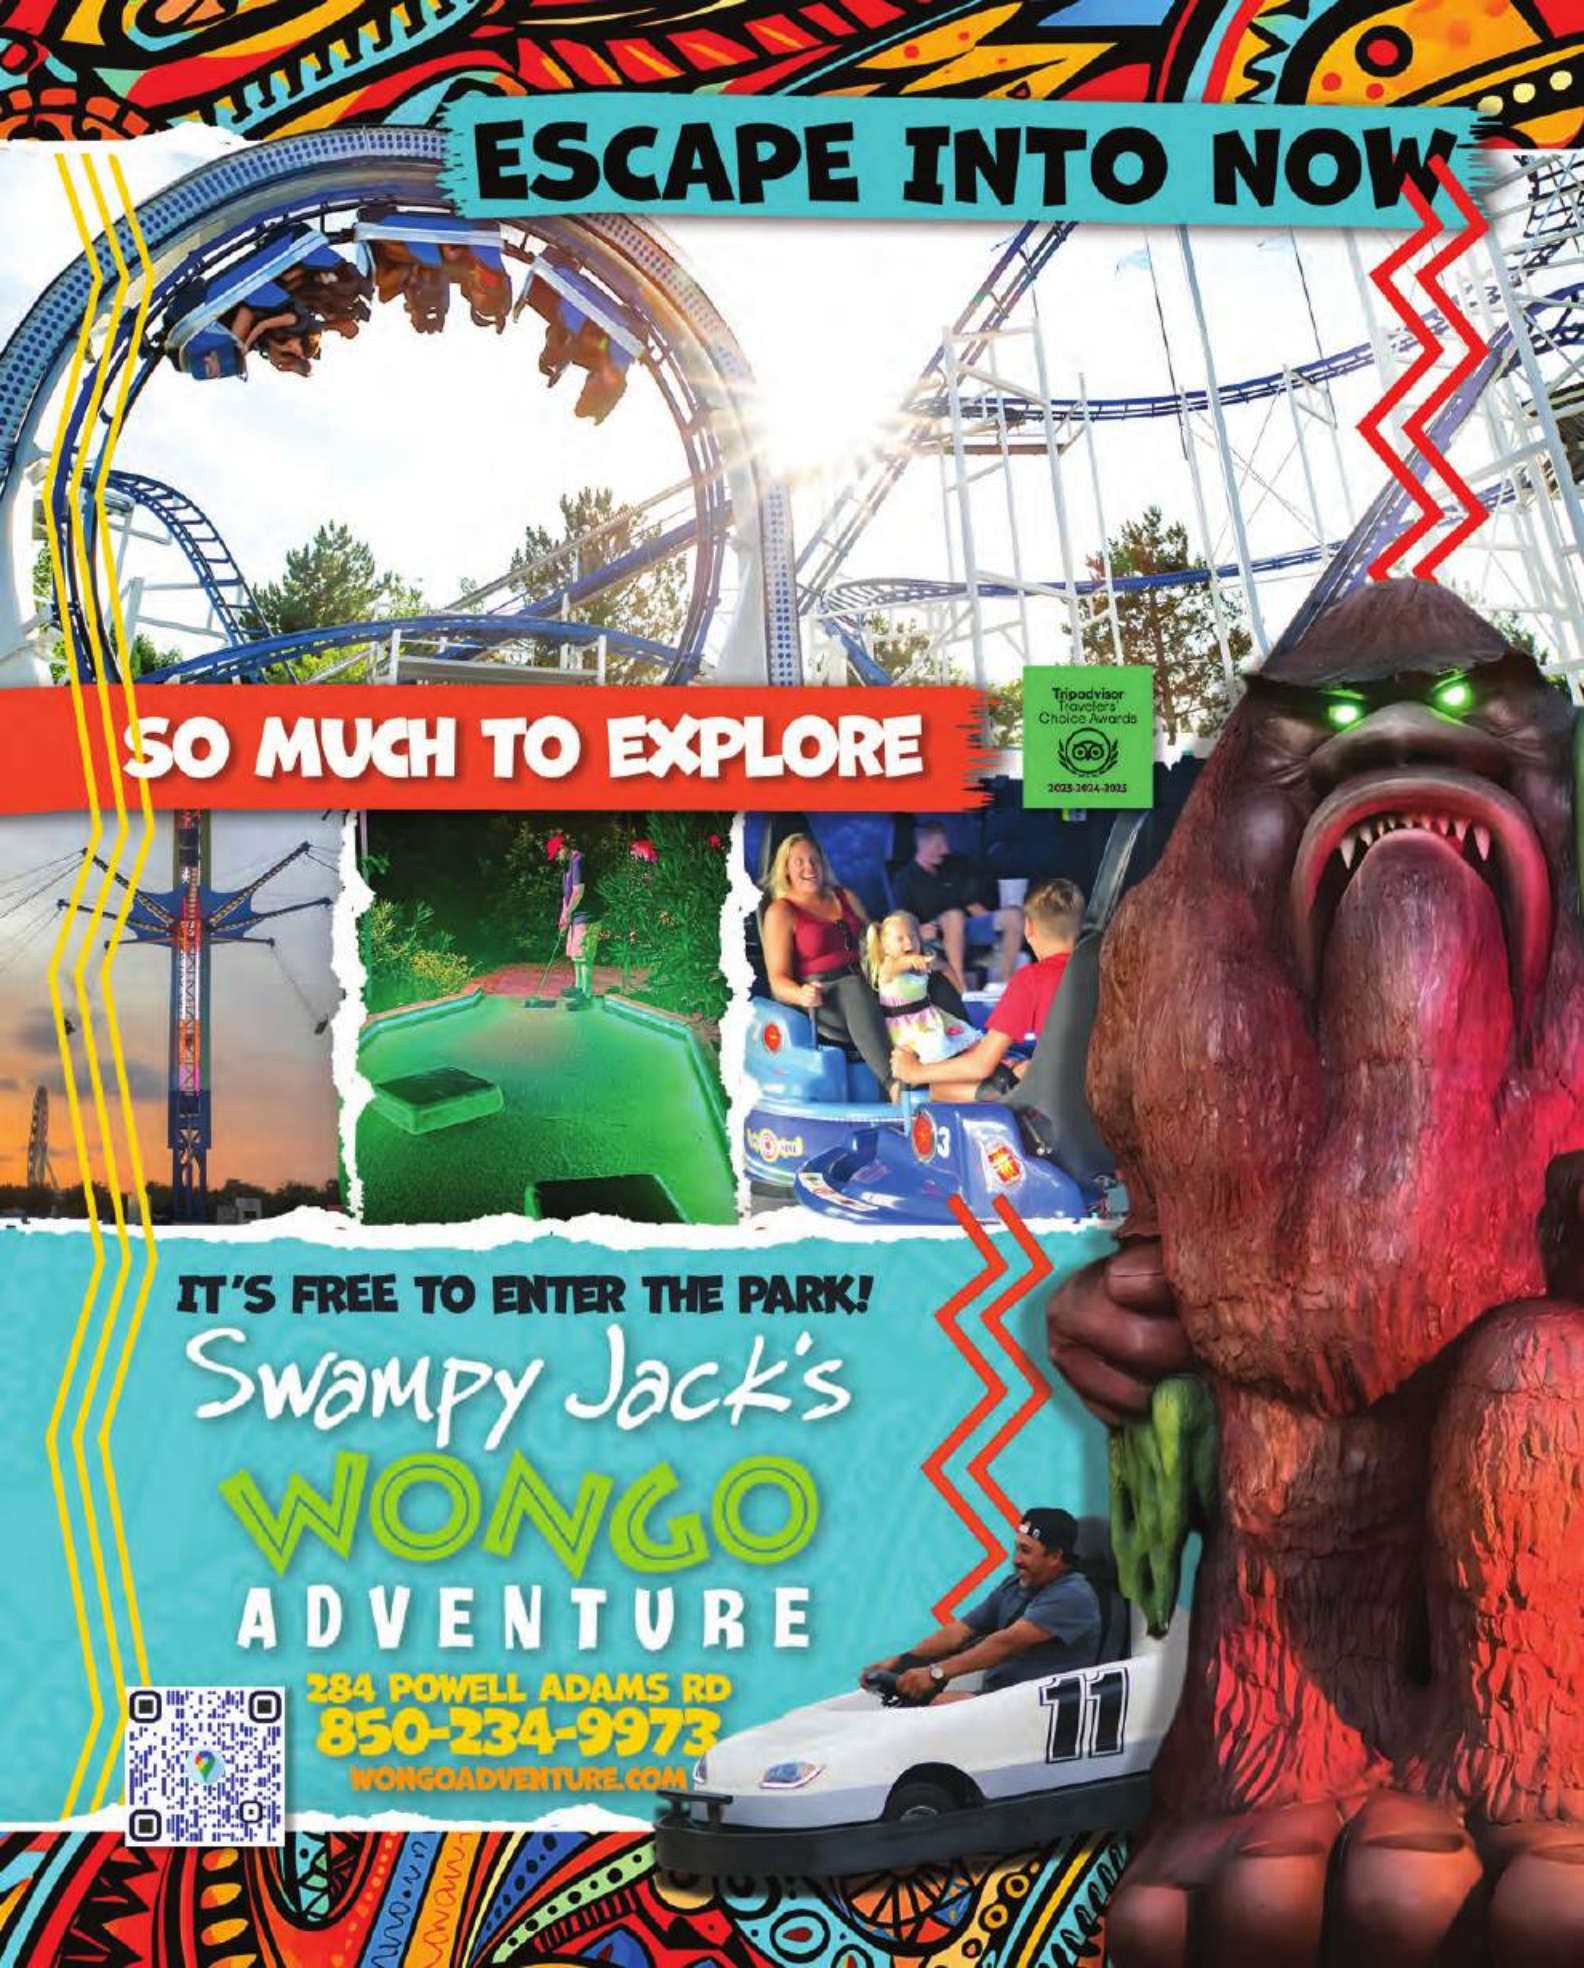

I used to joke that the beach was just another runway—just with better scenery. These days, on that beach, watching the same water I once flew over after taking off from Tyndall Air Force Base.

The other afternoon, that familiar rumble rolled in. A jet came down the coastline—fast, steady—likely heading in or out of training airspace over the Gulf. A little kid nearby jumped and asked what it was. His dad just smiled and said, “That’s the sound of freedom.”

I couldn’t help but grin and think how something as simple as a passing jet became a lesson he probably won’t forget: that what he was seeing wasn’t just noise overhead, but people working every day to make sure life down here stays what it is.

These days, when I hear that roar, it just reminds me how lucky we are to have it right here in our backyard.

Seas the Sunset

When the PCB sky is calling. Answer it.

FROM BRANDON BERRYMAN - BIRMINGHAM, AL

The first time I saw a Panama City Beach sunset, I just...stopped. Seriously. Pink, orange, gold—like the sky was throwing a party just for me. That's when I knew I was hooked.

If you hit up Schooners, you'll get the full Sunset Celebration experience—everyone claps, cheers, maybe sips a cold drink, and the sun slips into the Gulf like it's putting on a show. Other spots along the beach? Totally chill—just you, the sand, and a sky that looks like it's straight out of a painting.

Honestly, every sunset here feels like a little gift. No matter how many times I've watched the sun dip over the water since that first night, I still stop, stare, and smile. Panama City Beach sunsets never get old—and trust me, they'll get you too.
